

MRS. ROBERTSON PLANNED HOLDUP AT M'ALPIN HOTEL

Witness Swears Fake Robbery Was to Have Been Staged in Hostelry.

SHY OF GOTHAM COPS.

John Bailey, on Stand, Says He Refused to "Pull Job" Here.

(Special From Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)

FREEHOLD, N. J., May 26.—John Bailey, who has confessed he was employed by Mrs. Sarah L. Robertson of Deal to hold-up her and her guests Feb. 18 so she might make a $52,000 claim for insurance for the loss of her jewels, went on the stand here to-day in the Monmouth County Court as a witness for the State in Mrs. Robertson's trial on charges of larceny and conspiracy to defraud Lloyd's of London.

He testified that last November Samuel Gans engaged him to enact the part of a hold-up man, using a pistol to "force" Mrs. Robertson and other guests to "shell out." He said it was planned to make the "robbery" Nov. 20 or Dec. 4 but both were called off.

"There was to be a key under the mat for me to get in with," he testified. "Mrs. Robertson was to hand me her bag. One other guest, a man from Belmar with an arm broken, would offer no resistance; he was in on it."

In the middle of December, Bailey testified, the plans were changed to hold up the apartment of Mrs. Florence E. Pelletreau at No. 235 West 86th Street, pose as a real estate agent, threatening also to kidnap Mrs. Pelletreau's son.

"I would not tackle that. I didn't want to try it in New York. I also refused to try a job in the Hotel McAlpin, where Mrs. Robertson was to be," he testified.

The plans then were made to rob the house at Deal on the night of Feb. 18, he said.

"I got to the house and saw everybody laughing; that was the signal," he continued.

When he got in the house, where D. F. Meyer, Edward Lazarus, H. C. Taber and Miss Olive Robinson were guests of Mrs. Robertson, Bailey said he pointed his gun and commanded everybody to "shell out."

"Mrs. Robertson threw her pocket-book at me," he testified. "I had paper in it. All the money I was to get was to go to me. I told Meyer to 'shell out,' but Mrs. Robertson shook her head. She raised her hand and I left."

The witness testified he carried a revolver and wore a mask. The revolver was a .25 calibre automatic, the mask a handkerchief with two holes cut in it.

The witness put on the mask and Mrs. Robertson joined in the laughter of the courtroom.

"Mrs. Robertson didn't laugh on the night of the hold-up, did she?" asked Prosecutor Sexton.

"She opened the door wide, grinned, but her grin changed to a frightened expression," Bailey replied.

He said he got $35 from Meyer and that he was to get $1,000 from Mrs. Robertson when she collected her insurance.

Mrs. Robertson seemed no more disturbed by his testimony than she did yesterday when Samuel Gans was testifying to virtually the same story. She wore a new costume consisting of a brown crepe dress embroidered with beads, brown shoes and stockings and a bandeau of tulle of the same color about her auburn hair.

A brown scarf was hung over her shoulders and she wore a bouquet of sweet peas fastened on it. Unlike yesterday, when she wore many jewels, she wore only one ring. She smiled radiantly at acquaintances.

On cross-examination Bailey admitted he told Andrew J. C. Stokes, Mrs. Robertson's counsel, that he knew everything was "all right" when he saw that Meyer and Taber were at the house. He also admitted he never saw Mrs. Robertson before the night of the hold-up.

Bailey was asked if he met a man named Jackson Heming on the train the day after the robbery and said to him, "I wish I had the haul Meyer made last night."

"No," the witness answered. "Did you know Meyer and Taber were to be there at the house?" Mr. Stokes asked.

"I didn't know Meyer was to be there, but I knew Taber was," replied Bailey.

Mr. Stokes was attacked by Prosecutor Sexton and reprimanded by Judge Lawrence for his method of cross-examining the witness who had asked Bailey how many men he had killed.

Sexton objected, and declared Mr. Stokes to be "ignorant" of law.

"That was highly improper," Mr. Stokes said Judge Lawrence. "If you do it again I'll discipline you." On redirect examination Bailey testified that Stokes came to him in jail and asked him to write Meyer, saying that if he didn't get him out of jail he would "tell all." He said he didn't write the letter.

Mrs. Harriet Weiss of Long Branch testified Mrs. Robertson had used her telephone on the night of the robbery to notify the insurance company that she had been held up. Then, she continued, Mrs. Robertson stayed and played cards. The witness said they all had a pleasant evening. Mrs. Robertson did not seem upset, she

Mad Hatter Winning the Metropolitan Handicap As Society Attends the Opening of Belmont Park

MRS. FRANK C. HENDERSON. FASHION DISPLAYED AT BELMONT PARK.

WHY ASK WIVES TO "OBEY," NEVER DO, SAYS JUSTICE

"Love, Serve, Honor and Keep," Is Marriage Formula of Magistrate.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 26. Judge Charles H. Piper has eliminated the word "obey" from the marriage ceremonies performed by him as Police Justice.

"Wives never obey their husbands, anyway," said the Judge. "No why make the ceremony ridiculous by including that injunction?"

The Judge requires the bride to promise that she will "love, serve, honor and keep her husband in sickness and in health."

continued, but Mr. Meyer was somewhat nervous.

H. C. Taber of Belmar, one of Mrs. Robertson's guests on the night of Feb. 18, testified he had been asked by Gans if he would participate as a witness for a fake hold-up to be held at Mrs. Robertson's house Dec. 1.

"I told him I wouldn't do it," Taber testified. He was asked by Mrs. Robertson to come to her house Feb. 18, he continued, the message coming through Gans, who said Mrs. Robertson wanted to see him on business.

It was not believed Mrs. Robertson would testify in her own defense to-day as the Prosecutor announced that he had still ten witnesses to call for the State.

ASKS CITY TO PURCHASE THE LITCHFIELD PLOT

Kings County Historical Society Proposes Battle Memorial.

Charles A. Dittus, President of the Kings County Historical Society, and George A. Tiffany appeared before the Board of Estimate to-day to urge the acquisition by the city, as a memorial park, of the block bounded by Fourth Avenue, Third Street and Fifth Avenue and Fifth Street, Brooklyn, known as the Litchfield property.

"The greatest fighting of the Battle of Long Island took place on this spot," said Mr. Dittus. "Many patriots are buried there; it should be preserved by the city as a memorial park or playground."

Brooklyn Borough President Regelman said the only step that he can take now to acquire the Litchfield property is to appeal to land purchasers there not to build until the city has decided whether or not the land should be acquired.

TWO BROOKLYN CHURCHES TO CONSOLIDATE.

Justice Fisher in Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to-day signed an order authorizing the consolidation of the Bedford Heights and Summer Avenue Baptist churches under the designation of the Trinity Baptist Church. The site of the new congregation was not indicated in the petition, which stated that the congregations of both churches desire the change.

COAL STRIKE CONFERENCE GOES AWAY FOR WEEK.

Union officials and anthracite operators, conferring in an attempt to end the coal strike to-day, adjourned until next Friday without a further discussion of the miners' reply to the demands of the operators for a 21 per cent. wage reduction.

BOY'S CONFESSION FREES FATHER OF MURDER CHARGE

Clarence Schmei Admits He Saw Brother Drown Himself After Fleeing Home.

John Schmei is back on his farm near Tuckerton, N. J., to-day, having been exonerated of the death of his ten-year-old son, Henry, through the story of Clarence, his sixteen-year-old son. The father had been arrested Tuesday after the body of Henry was found in a little lake near his home.

Clarence was taken as a witness yesterday and after he had told how Henry jumped into the lake, Prosecutor Jayne of Lakewood ordered the father's release. The Prosecutor issued this statement:

"The story told by Clarence was greatly different from that of his father, and I sent a country officer to Tuckerton, who brought the boy back to the County Jail at Tom's River, where his father was held."

"There Ellis Parker, noted detective from Burlington County, and I questioned the boy in the presence of his father. The youth broke down and, while sobbing, told the following story:

"On the afternoon of Henry's disappearance, upon Henry's arrival home from school I told father a lie in order to see Henry, who I disliked, get a beating. Henry went to the house and changed his clothes and then came in the back yard and father ran after him across the field. My brother outran father, and I took up the pursuit. I chased him into the woods near the lake and he ran directly in the direction of the water."

"When I was about five feet behind him Henry jumped from the bank of the lake and disappeared beneath the hawthorn. I stayed at the spot for some time and then climbed a tree overlooking the lake, expecting that I might see my brother's body beneath the muddy surface. However, his body failed to come to the top and I was afraid to go home for fear of my father and afraid that I would be arrested."

"I stayed out until dark and then decided I would go home and tell my parents I did not see Henry. I have stuck to the lie since the very beginning, but now I am telling the truth."

The boy related him he had visited the spot five times since the day of the disappearance and on one of these trips the official of the Prosecutor's office saw him climb the tree.

STAIN AS HE SAT ON STOOP.

James Tierney, sixteen, of No. 303 West 11th Street, was shot and killed while he was sitting on the stoop of the National Biscuit Company Building, No. 420 West 11th Street, at 10:30 o'clock last night. The assassin escaped. A revolver was found in the hallway of a tenement at No. 422 West 11th Street, into which Tierney ran after the shot was fired, residents of the block told the police.

BARNARD PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED FOR CLASS EXERCISES

"Dangerous Ages," Senior Show, to Be Given on June 2 and 3.

Evelyn Orne of No. 15 Clyde Street, Jamaica, will give the valedictory at the class day exercises at Barnard College, June 6, it was announced to-day. Eve M. Jacoby of No. 139 Claremont Avenue, senior class President, will give the salutatory. Helen Warren of Perth Amboy, N. J., is class historian.

Following the class history, a prophecy, arranged by Roberta Dumbacher of No. 628 West 151st Street, will be given. Edith J. Cahn of Lawrence, L. I., will present the class gift to the college, following which Vivian Tappan will announce the Phi Beta Kappa elections.

"Dangerous Ages" is the title of the senior show to be given in Brinckerhoff Theater June 2 and 3. The cast includes Eve M. Jacoby, Margaret Emerson, Robert Dumbacher, Eva Hutchison, Isabel Strang, Eva Glensbrook, Louise Schlichting, Helen Mack, Helen Dayton, Margaret Pezzullo, Eleanor Starke, Pearl Wachman, Leah Josephson, Vera Swartz, Edith Veit and Elsie Johnson.

Marguerite Gerdau is Chairman of the show committee and Helen Dayton, Lila North and Jane Dewey have charge of the staging, costuming and lighting. Margaret Talley is business manager.

President and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler, Prof. and Mrs. Jacoby, Mr. and Mrs. Cahn, Mr. and Mrs. Lowe, Dr. and Mrs. Griffin, Miss Bird Larson, Miss Myrick, Miss Weeks and Miss Abbott will be patrons and patronesses at the senior dance in Students' Hall June 5.

ACADIAN HISTORIAN BACK FROM FRANCE.

Among those on board the French liner Rochambeau, which arrived from Havre to-day, was the Rev. H. Prince Beaudet, a lecturer at St. Stephen Hall, Montreal. Some time ago the priest took to France, to be presented to the French Academy, his "History of the Acadians," a work compiled after eight years of research. This is said to be the first complete history of the people made famous by Louisbourg in his "Evangelicalism" in June of 1811. It is said that Mr. Beaudet made a number of the French people.

FIRE IN TENEMENT DISCLOSES STILLS, BUT OWNERS FLEE

Following an explosion that blew out all the windows of a three-room apartment on the second floor of the six-story tenement at No. 527 East 117th Street at noon to-day, a fire started which flooded the building with thick smoke and a strong odor of alcohol.

The thirty-three families in the building were driven from their apartments, those on the upper floors escaping by way of the roof.

After firemen had extinguished the blaze Policemen Gleason and Leary of the East 128th Street Station investigated the apartment and found it bare of furniture, but equipped with two galvanized stoves about four feet high, twenty-five-gallon cans of alcohol, a barrel of liquid that smelled like alcohol and the remnants of about a dozen cans that had contained alcohol and had contributed their contents to the fire.

The tenants were unanimous in saying that they did not know who occupied the apartment. Two strange men have been seen entering and leaving, they said.

DON'T HURL BRICKS, LAY 'EM, SAYS HAYS

Movie Dictator Sees Prosperity for Country Just Ahead of Us.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 26.—"Prosperity is right ahead of us and it is time to go out and meet it," Will Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, declared to-day in Carnegie Institute here.

"Let us lay bricks, not throw them," he said. "I cry continually for the common sense of courage, confidence and co-operation."

Hays spoke briefly on the subject of censorship, declaring the public has the right to see the pictures and that as it is for the press and the pulpit.

GIRLS FLEE FIRE: INJURY IN NEWARK GARAGE.

Fire caused $15,000 damage at the garage of Samuel Weiss, No. 371 Livingston Street, Newark, to-day. The fire followed an explosion of alcohol and endangered the entire block. Sixty-five of the American class (Hull) automobiles at No. 373 Livingston Street, Newark, were among the cars damaged. Two automobiles were damaged. No one was injured.

Tries Cave Man Life at Tender Age of 10 Years

But Hoboken Lad Is Cured When His Vitals Are Entirely Consumed.

Michael Ribaldo of Hoboken started out to be a cave man at the tender age of ten and enjoyed the experience for thirty-four hours. He is at his home, No. 314 Monroe Street, to-day, probably cured of his conduct for running away.

He started for Public School No. 3 Wednesday morning, but thought better of it and wandered off to Weehawken, making a stand at last in a rocky, wooded stretch known as Weehawken Cliffs. He had bought some bacon, sausage and bread for the adventure, and in the woods he made a cave.

The adventure went very well until 11 o'clock last night when all the provisions save a sandwich were gone. Then he ventured into the street, munching the last few crumbs. John Schuster, who lives in Kingwood Avenue, found him and took him to Weehawken Police Headquarters. His father was notified.

HETTRICK CASE TO JURY TO-DAY

Counsel on Both Sides Sums Up in the Conspiracy Trial.

Virtually all of to-day's session in the trial of John T. Hettrick, lawyer, and others on indictments charging conspiracy to coerce master steamfitters into joining Hettrick's "code of practice" system, was spent by counsel in the case in summations. The case probably will go to the jury this afternoon.

Max D. Steuer finished his summation shortly before noon, after addressing the jury in defense of his client, Charles G. Witherspoon, and the other four defendants. Former Senator Martin Sheridan, representing Martin McQue and John M. Imhoff, two of the defendants, followed Mr. Steuer.

Deputy Attorney General Chambers will sum up for the prosecution this afternoon. Justice Alverson estimated his charge to the jury would take about forty-five minutes.

OPPOSE "DEAD END" OF NEW SUBWAY AT POLO GROUNDS

Washington Heights Wants B. R. T. to Extend Along St. Nicholas Avenue.

Considerable opposition to "dead ending" at the Polo Grounds the B. R. T. Central Park West proposed extension of the Broadway subway was expressed to-day by representatives of several associations of Washington Heights, who want the extension to go up Eighth Avenue instead of Seventh from 110th Street to 121st Street, along St. Nicholas Avenue to 176th Street and up Fort Washington Avenue to 187th Street.

The Washington Heights representatives, among whom were Mayer C. Goldman, Reginald Pelham Bolton, Henry Pasternack, former Alderman James Forest, Charles S. Lubin and others, all favored the Transit Commission's plan, but opposed the 7th Avenue and 155th Street terminus. They were a unit in advocating that the B. R. T. extension from Columbus Circle should serve Washington Heights so as to give to that section both a B. R. T. and I. R. T. service.

Mr. Bolton, an engineer, who appeared for the Washington Heights Chamber of Commerce, said the present plan of terminating the extension at 155th Street near the Polo Grounds would benefit the 120,000 Negroes in Harlem and the transients who go to the Polo Grounds. He said he was not adverse to serving the Negroes in Harlem, but added "I think there are some things more important than baseball parks."

John J. Walker of the Bedford Heights (Brooklyn) Board of Trade was also against the 155th Street terminus.

Mr. Walker said that Brooklynites wanted to get quick access to the automobile section along Central Park West, north of Columbus Circle, and he thought, too, that they wanted to go to Washington Heights more than to Harlem, and "the only advantage in the Seventh Avenue terminal will be to our colored friends in Harlem, who want to use the B. R. T. service to Coney Island."

Copeland Townsend, President of the Central Park West and Columbus Avenue Association, favored the proposed route up Central Park West, but thought the terminal should be in Washington Heights. Mr. Townsend was not in accord with the proposed trunk line up Eighth and Amsterdam Avenues, for the reason, he said, that the Broadway line served the territory to be served by the proposed west side trunk line.

Harry Pasternack, department store owner in Washington Heights, said the Chamber of Commerce of Washington Heights had circulated a petition and obtained 100,000 signatures pleading for the St. Nicholas Avenue route instead of the Polo Grounds terminus.

Dudley Harde favored the west side trunk line up Eighth and Amsterdam Avenues, but wanted the terminal extended from 181st Street to Dyckman Street.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Mr. Goldman thanked the Transit Commissioners for holding the public hearing and said the Commission was approaching the problem of rapid transit in the right spirit. He said the criticisms directed at the plan were constructive only, and not in any sense against the general scheme of unification of the traction systems.

OPPOSE "DEAD END" OF NEW SUBWAY AT POLO GROUNDS

Washington Heights Wants B. R. T. to Extend Along St. Nicholas Avenue.

Considerable opposition to "dead ending" at the Polo Grounds the B. R. T. Central Park West proposed extension of the Broadway subway was expressed to-day by representatives of several associations of Washington Heights, who want the extension to go up Eighth Avenue instead of Seventh from 110th Street to 121st Street, along St. Nicholas Avenue to 176th Street and up Fort Washington Avenue to 187th Street.

The Washington Heights representatives, among whom were Mayer C. Goldman, Reginald Pelham Bolton, Henry Pasternack, former Alderman James Forest, Charles S. Lubin and others, all favored the Transit Commission's plan, but opposed the 7th Avenue and 155th Street terminus. They were a unit in advocating that the B. R. T. extension from Columbus Circle should serve Washington Heights so as to give to that section both a B. R. T. and I. R. T. service.

Mr. Bolton, an engineer, who appeared for the Washington Heights Chamber of Commerce, said the present plan of terminating the extension at 155th Street near the Polo Grounds would benefit the 120,000 Negroes in Harlem and the transients who go to the Polo Grounds. He said he was not adverse to serving the Negroes in Harlem, but added "I think there are some things more important than baseball parks."

John J. Walker of the Bedford Heights (Brooklyn) Board of Trade was also against the 155th Street terminus.

Mr. Walker said that Brooklynites wanted to get quick access to the automobile section along Central Park West, north of Columbus Circle, and he thought, too, that they wanted to go to Washington Heights more than to Harlem, and "the only advantage in the Seventh Avenue terminal will be to our colored friends in Harlem, who want to use the B. R. T. service to Coney Island."

Copeland Townsend, President of the Central Park West and Columbus Avenue Association, favored the proposed route up Central Park West, but thought the terminal should be in Washington Heights. Mr. Townsend was not in accord with the proposed trunk line up Eighth and Amsterdam Avenues, for the reason, he said, that the Broadway line served the territory to be served by the proposed west side trunk line.

Harry Pasternack, department store owner in Washington Heights, said the Chamber of Commerce of Washington Heights had circulated a petition and obtained 100,000 signatures pleading for the St. Nicholas Avenue route instead of the Polo Grounds terminus.

Dudley Harde favored the west side trunk line up Eighth and Amsterdam Avenues, but wanted the terminal extended from 181st Street to Dyckman Street.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Mr. Goldman thanked the Transit Commissioners for holding the public hearing and said the Commission was approaching the problem of rapid transit in the right spirit. He said the criticisms directed at the plan were constructive only, and not in any sense against the general scheme of unification of the traction systems.

CRAIG WINS VICTORY FOR QUEENS PEOPLE

Reduces 40 Per Cent. Tax to 20 for Extension of Northern Boulevard.

Comptroller Craig was given an ovation by residents from Queens to-day when he succeeded in reversing a report of the Committee on Assessments which would have imposed 40 per cent. of the cost of the widening and improvement of the Northern Boulevard on the immediate neighborhood. The Comptroller believed that inasmuch as the people in the immediate neighborhood of the improvement are opposed to it, but would prefer assessments for sewers and other much needed developments, they should not be asked more than 20 per cent. for the boulevard. The Estimate Board voted to sustain the Comptroller. The borough will pay 30 per cent. and the city at least 50 per cent.

The reversal of the assessors' report was brought about by Mr. Craig after a large delegation of Queens property owners had vigorously protested that the extending of Northern Boulevard did not initiate with them; that it benefited only Sunday automobilists who travel into Nassau County, and that they would be willing to pay almost any amount for the laying out of streets and the installation of up-to-date sewers instead.

The extension otherwise known as Broadway-Jackson Avenue, will be 100 feet wide and will run from Cemetery Lane to the eastern boundary of the city.

5,000 POLICEMEN TO HAVE COMMUNION BREAKFAST.

The branch of Holy Name Society of the Police Department, Brooklyn and Queens sections, will hold their annual communion breakfast on June 11 at Trimmers, Rushwick Parkway and Conaway Street. It is expected 5,000 policemen will be in attendance. The policemen will attend mass in the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Broadway and Aberdeen Street. They will receive communion and then go to the breakfast.

SHUT RIVAL BAKERY, UNTERMYER TELLS UNION ORGANIZER

Hints at Criminal Proceedings in Alleged Conspiracy—Granite Body Dissolves.

Samuel Untermyer interrupted the examination of Jacob Goldstone, general organizer of the Bakers' and Confectioners' Union of America to-day to make this threat:

"I will give you until to-night to close the union store in Avenue C."

The intimation was that criminal proceedings would be taken against Goldstone and local officers of the Jewish Bakers' union charging conspiracy to ruin Max Schlesinger of No. 29 Avenue C, and others.

Testimony to prove the extent to which union methods can go in tyranny and ruthlessness, with the Jewish bakers as an example, has been taken at length in order to impress upon the committee the need for a state regulation of the finances of building trade unions and their actions which affect other than union members and employers.

Schlesinger yesterday said he had sought permission to discharge a baker because of the falling off of his business. When he became insolvent and took the matter before the Executive Board he said a strike was ordered on his place and a boycott was enforced by a picket, made up of his former employees aided by hundreds of men, women and boys. He obtained a sign injunction and the union opened a rival bakery in which it sold bread and rolls far below the cost of manufacture, ruining him and other bakers in the vicinity.

He was also informed that a heavy fine had been imposed upon him, the amount of which, though kept secret, was so great that it would prevent him earning his living as a journeyman baker should he try to re-enter the union after his business as a master baker had been ruined.

Goldstone testified that the union had raised a fund of $15,000 to establish the punitive union bakery. He said the international union had tried in vain to persuade the local union to agree to arbitration with the master Jewish bakers and that the international union could not dictate to the locals.

Daniel H. Brown, No. 495 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, a granite contractor, testified that he was a member of the firm of John Brown, son of Peckah N. Y., with local offices at 141st Street and Ryder Avenue, the Bronx. He declared that a meeting Saturday afternoon of the Building Granite Manufacturers' Association, at which all members were either present or represented by proxy, the association unanimously voted to dissolve at once and instructed its counsel to draw up the necessary papers.

Mr. Untermyer read into the record a letter received from the Architectural Iron and Bronze Association, which held a meeting May 15 in Chicago, at which the association unanimously voted to dissolve at once and instructed its counsel to draw up the necessary papers.

Frank C. Perkins, Commissioner of Public Affairs of Buffalo, was the next witness. He was called in connection with the matter of various contracts and recommendations for public schools in Buffalo. Mr. Perkins said that a recommendation of the Board of Education for $8,000,000 in 1919 for new school buildings was increased to $14,754,751 in 1921. Later, Mr. Perkins said, with additional allowances for equipment and other changes, the amount was increased to $19,867,301.

It was brought out that a substitute recommendation was later made to the City Council which amounted to between ten and eleven million dollars. Mr. Untermyer said that many bids were rejected following the last visit to Buffalo of the Lockwood committee.

"DIAMOND WORTH $400" PROVES TO BE BAUBLE

Emil Valda of No. 247 West 42d Street, Manhattan, was found guilty of grand larceny in the second degree before County Judge Macdonald today in Brooklyn to-day. The complainant was Joseph Gill, proprietor of a restaurant and hotel at No. 355 Furman Street, Brooklyn.

Gill said that on April 10 Valda offered him a stone he said was a diamond worth $400 for $200. Gill bought it. Later he learned it was a piece of glass, he said.

The next day Valda telephoned Gill he had another stone to sell. Gill told him to bring it around, and when Valda arrived, called a policeman. Valda will be sentenced Monday.

Until you've tasted Ancre Cheese you can't know how delicious a rich, cream cheese flavored with genuine Roquefort, really is.

The double wrapped, sanitary sealed packages.

With the Genuine Roquefort Flavor.

ANCRE CHEESE

Made by SHARPLESS, Philadelphia.

THE WORLD'S

Harlem Office

Now Located at

2092 7th Ave.

Near 125th St.

HOTEL THERESA BUILDING